Ontic signs License Agreement with Honeywell for Cockpit LCD Displays on multiple platforms

Chatsworth, California – Ontic, a BBA Aviation company and aerospace industry's leading provider of 'Extended Life Solutions' for Original Equipment Manufacturer (OEM) legacy products, has signed a new exclusive license agreement with Honeywell for cockpit displays.

The license covers 26 product families consisting of 162 line replaceable units. These LRU's are fitted on over 50+ various commercial, military fixed-wing and rotorcraft aircraft manufactured by a number of aircraft OEMs including Airbus, Boeing, Lockheed Martin, Bombardier & Korean Industries etc.

Gareth Hall, President of Ontic, said "The proactive life cycle support planning that Honeywell has undertaken with Ontic provides assurance to the customers that these products are available for as long as the market requires them. Legacy electronics and avionics have been a substantial part of Ontic's business for many years and the products in this license are an excellent fit. We look forward to the continuation of our mutually successful 35 year relationship with Honeywell providing Extended Life Solutions."

Ontic's global legacy focus is supported from manufacturing and MRO facilities in Chatsworth, California; Cheltenham in the United Kingdom; and in Singapore.

Ontic is a wholly owned subsidiary of BBA Aviation plc, with over 42 years of aerospace product manufacturing and aftermarket support experience.
